SECRETARY WALLACE'S CONDITION IS GRAVE Posse Searches Swamp For Bride And Groom

YOUTH SHOTS TWO AND THEN ESCAPES WITH GIRL CAPTIVE

Forces Bride to go With Him After Father and Brother Are Shot

SEARCH FAILS TO LOCATE THE PAIR

Physicians Believe That Both of Wounded Will Recover

(Associated Press)

NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 24.—An all night search by a posse of Buck Trout wamp failed to locate Frank James and his bride whom he forced to accompany him after he had shot her father and brother, J. P. Mayhan and Hugh Mayhan, respectively.

The father is suffering of gun shot wounds in the leg and the brother received a load of shot in the right arm and side, some of it penetrating the abdomen. Hospital physicians thought today both would recover.

James and Ruth Mayhan were married at Elizabeth City, N. C., ten days ago, despite the opposition of the girl's father. A few days ago, Mr. Mayhan said today, the girl left her husband and returned to his home without any suggestion on his part. Hugh Mayhan said James opened the door of the Mayhan home last evening and fired into the room, where he and his sister were sitting.

He then grabbed the girl while dragging her from the house, encountered the father. The older Mayhan said James fired at him and exclaimed: "I'll kill the whole family now."

He then forced the girl to accompany him into the swamp and the search for them is being continued today.

TEMPERANCE ACT WINS IN CANADA

Rural Dry Sections To Turn Tide In Favor Of Prohibition

(Associated Press)

TORONTO, Canada, Oct. 24.—Revised figures in the Ontario liquor question up to 9:30 o'clock this morning gave a majority of 30,167 for the Temperance act. The figures in the dry columns continued to mount as the returns from the rural district were received.

The alternative proposal which called for the sale of liquor under government control piled up a lead of 70,000 soon after the polls closed and the city districts were all in. The strongly dry rural sections however turned the tide at midnight.

The plebiscite was the first in Ontario since 1919 when a similar referendum showed a majority of 407,000 in favor of the dry law. The act was passed in 1916 as a war measure and is similar to the 18th amendment in the United States constitution in that it allows the sale of liquor only upon the authority of physicians for medical purposes.

Women's organizations campaigned actively for the retention of the act while the "wets" concentrated their efforts on the cities which they felt would roll up a safe majority to carry the alternative.

Woman Candidate Has Relative Here

The candidacy of Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross for the governorship of Wyoming has attracted much interest here not only because Mrs. Ross is one of America's first gubernatorial candidates, but because of her relation by marriage to W. R. Smith, popular business man of Albany.

A Cheyenne, Wyo., dispatch stated that Mrs. Ross was named by unanimous vote to be the democratic nominee for Governor of Wyoming, following the recent death of her husband, Governor William B. Ross. She is of Virginia and Tennessee parentage and was born in Mississippi, the dispatch stated.

LOCAL MOUND NOT TO BE 'EXPLORED' BY DR. FOWKE NOW

Smithsonian Explorer Finds Mound Here Is a "Flat Top"

RELICS FOUND ARE INTERESTING

Work Completed In the Town Creek Area In Lawrence County

The mound on the Somerville road, near the crossing of the Bee Line highway, will not be explored at this time by Dr. Genar Fowke, of the Smithsonian Institute, Dr. Fowke having been convinced by a preliminary examination this morning that the mound would not yield relics of sufficient interest to warrant undertaking the excavation.

Dr. Fowke has just completed the exploration of several Indian mounds in Lawrence County, near Town Creek and hopes to obtain permission from owners of the property to explore several mounds in other sections of Lawrence, near Moulton.

The mound here is a "flat top," Dr. Fowke explained, mounds of that variety rarely yielding relics. Conical mounds usually yield the greatest volume of relics he said.

During the excavations near Town Creek, Dr. Fowke said, 20 skeletons were found in one mound, together with interesting copper plates, copper beads and other interesting relics, including several farm implements.

Mostly Children.

Dr. Fowke, discussing the excavation of mounds, declared that fully 75 per cent of the Indian skeletons he had found were of children. The mortality rate among children of the Indian tribes must have been very heavy he added.

Among the skeletons found near Town Creek was one which had a flat head. Apparently the abnormal growth of the skull had been started when the Indian was a baby. One skeleton revealed a broken leg, which had healed nicely even in those days before modern surgery was known. A shin bone revealed a bowed leg, the curvature being in the direction of the toe of the foot, instead of toward the side of the foot as is usual now.

Another mound yielded several skeletons of both adults and children. Dr. Fowke declared he found much of interest to him in the Town Creek mound area.

CONCERN IS FELT BUT HOPE IS HELD FOR HIS RECOVERY

Cabinet Member Has A Turn for Worse At Naval Hospital

PRESIDENT CALLS ON THE SICK MAN

No Visitors Allowed To See Chief of Dept. of Agriculture

(Associated Press)

WASHINGTON Oct. 24.—Secretary Wallace of the agriculture department has suffered further complications from the operation he underwent last week for the removal of his appendix and gall bladder and his condition is reported as serious.

Toxemia, resulting from an infection of the intestines, has set in, and Dr. John Finney of Johns Hopkins University was called today for consultation.

While concern is felt by physicians over the condition of Mr. Wallace, Dr. J. T. Boone, white house physician, one of those attending him, said hope is held for his recovery.

President Coolidge made a trip today to the naval hospital but because of the turn for the worse, in the condition of the secretary, he did not enter the sick room.

Mr. Wallace was operated on last week and for several days he proceeded toward recovery. A complication set in yesterday, however, and this was followed early today by a still more serious development.

No visitors are allowed to see him.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK IS GOOD SAYS GARY

(Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Business conditions during the next four years depend largely upon the result of the coming election, E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, declared in his presidential address to the American Iron and Steel Institute today.

"Every well informed business man or woman," he said, "knows that if the best men are elected there probably will be continued and increasing prosperity and if others less capable and less worthy are selected, we may expect depression and disturbances in business, less production, more idleness, less comfort, more distress; a decided interruption to legitimate progress that will not be easily nor soon overcome."

Mr. Gary said he was convinced the public had been right during the last few months in believing the election returns would be satisfactory as shown by the steady and persistent increase in the volume of business.

With such a result, he added, the country could look forward through the autumn and succeeding months with hope and confidence.

"Our ship of state is too great, too fine, too solid, substantial and strong," he declared, "to be pronounced un-seaworthy on the words of unscrupulous, unintelligent, or inexperienced men, and then turned over to a board of underwriters."

Outlining qualifications which he believed a president of the United States should possess, Mr. Gary said: "He should be willing to lend his influence and devote his talents to legitimate business progress and general prosperity and likewise to prevent and penalize corruption and wrong. He should endeavor to assist and to protect the poor, the weak and the suffering, and at the same time should be willing to help the rich, the strong and the happy when it is undisputably right to do so."

Sakr-el-Bahr himself paced the poop deck of the carack and watched the lights perish one by one in the little town that straggled up the hillside before him. The moon came up and bathed it in a white hard light, throwing sharp inky shadows of rustling date palm and spear-like minaret, and flinging shafts of silver athwart the peaceful bay.

His wound was healed, and he was fully himself once more. Two days ago he had come on deck for the first time since the fight with the Dutchman, and he had spent there the greater portion of the time since then. Once only had he visited his captives. He had risen from his couch to repair straight to the cabin in the poop where Rosamund was confined. He had found her pale and very wistful, but with her courage entirely unbroken.

The Godolphins were a stiff-necked race, and Rosamund bore in her frail body the spirit of a man. She looked up when he entered, started a little in surprise to see him at last, for it was the first time he stood before her since he had carried her off from Arwanack some four weeks ago. Then she had averted her eyes and sat there, elbows on the table, as if carved of wood, as if blind to his presence and deaf to his words.

To the expressions of regret—and they were sincere, for already he repented him this unpromising act so far as she was concerned—she returned no slightest answer, gave no sign, indeed, that she heard a word of it. Baffled, he stood gnawing his lip a moment and gradually, unreasonably perhaps, anger welled up from his heart. He turned and went out again. Next he had visited his brother, to consider in silence a moment the haggard, wild-eyed, rashorn wretch who shrank and cowered before him in the consciousness of guilt. At last he returned to the deck, and there, as I have said, he spent the greater portion of the last three days of that strange voyage, reclining for the most part in the sun and gathering strength from its ardor.

Tonight as he paced under the moon a stealthy shadow crept up the companion to call him gently by his English name: "Sir Oliver!"

He started as if a ghost had suddenly leaped up to greet him. It was Jasper Leigh who hailed him thus.

"Come up," he said, "and when the fellow stood before him on the poop:

"I have told you already that there is no Sir Oliver. I am Oliver-Reis or Sakr-el-Bahr, as you please, one of the Faithful of the Prophet's House. And now what is your will?"

"Have I not served you faithfully and well?" quoth Captain Leigh. "Who has denied it?"

"None. But neither has any acknowledged it. When you lay wounded below it had been an easy thing for me to have played the traitor. I might have sailed these ships into the mouth of Tagus. I might so, by God!"

"You'd have been carved in pieces on the spot," said Sakr-el-Bahr.

"I might have hugged the land and run the risk of capture and then claimed my liberation from captivity."

"And found yourself back on the galleys of his Catholic Majesty. But there! I grant that you have dealt loyally by me. You have kept your part of the bond. I shall keep mine, never doubt it."

"I do not. But your part of the bond was to send me home again."

"Well?"

"The hell of it is that I know not where to find a home, I know not where home may be after these years. If ye send me forth I shall become a wanderer of no account."

"What else am I to do with you?"

"Faith, now, I am as full weary of Christians and Christendom as you was yourself when the Moslems took the galley on which you toiled. I am a man of parts, Sir Ol—Sakr-el-Bahr. No better navigator ever sailed a ship from an English port, and I have seen a mort o' fighting and know the art of it upon the sea. Can ye make naught of me here?"

"You would become a renegade like me?" His tone was bitter.

"I have been thinking that 'renegade' is a word that depends upon which side you're on. I'll prefer to say that I've a wish to be converted to the faith of Mahound."

"Converted to the faith of piracy and plunder and robbery upon the seas is what you mean," said Sakr-el-Bahr.

"Nay, now. To that I should need no converting, for all that I were afore," Captain Leigh admitted frankly. "I ask but to sail under another flag than the Jolly Roger."

"You'll need to abjure strong drink," said Sakr-el-Bahr.

"There be compensations," said Master Leigh.

Sakr-el-Bahr considered. The rogue's appeal smote a responsive chord in his heart. It would be good to have a man of his own race beside him, even though it were but such a rascal as this.

"Be it as you will," he said at last. "You deserve to be hanged in spite of what promises I made you. But no matter for that. So that you become a Moslem I will take you to serve beside me, one of my own lieutenants to begin with, and so long as you are loyal to me, Jasper, all will be well. But at the first sign of faithlessness a rope and the yard-arm, my friend, and an airy dance into hell for you."

The rascally skipper stooped in his emotion, caught up Sakr-el-Bahr's hand and bore it to his lips. "It is agreed," he said. "Ye have shown me mercy who have little deserved it from you. Never fear for my loyalty. My life belongs to you, and worthless thing though it may be, ye may do with it as ye please."

Despite himself Sakr-el-Bahr tightened his grip upon the rogue's hand, and Jasper shuffled off and down the companion again, touched to the heart for once in his rough villainous life by a clemency that he knew to be undeserved, but which he swore should be deserved ere all was done.

CHAPTER XV

MARZAK-BEN-ASAD

It took no less than forty camels to convey the cargo of that Dutch argosy from the mole to the Kasbah, and the procession—carefully marshaled by Sakr-el-Bahr, who knew the value of such pageants to impress the mob—was such as never yet had been seen in the narrow streets of Algiers upon the return of any corsair. It was full worthy of the greatest Moslem conqueror that sailed the seas, of one who, not content to keep to the tideless Mediterranean as had hitherto been the rule of his kind, had ventured forth upon the wider ocean.

"She sat there, as if carved of wood."

Ahead marched a hundred of his rovers in their short cutans of every conceivable color, their waists swathed in gaudy scarves, some of which supported a very arsenal of assorted cutlery; many wore body armor of mail and the gleaming spike of a casque thrust up above their turbans. After them, dejected and in chains, came the five-score prisoners taken aboard the Dutchman, urged along by the whips of the corsairs who flanked them. Then marched another regiment of corsairs, and after these the long line of stately, sneering camels, shuffling cumbrously along and led by shouting Saharowis. After them followed yet more corsairs, and then, mounted on a white Arab jennet, his head swathed in a turban of cloth of gold, came Sakr-el-Bahr.

In the narrower streets, with their white and yellow washed houses, which presented blank windowless walls broken here and there by no more than a slit to admit light and air, the spectators huddled themselves fearfully into doorways to avoid being crushed to death by the camels, whose burdens bulging on either side entirely filled those narrow ways. But the more open spaces, such as the strand on either side of the mole, the square before the sok and the approaches of Asad's fortress, were thronged with a motley, roaring crowd.

There were stately Moors in flowing robes cheek by jowl with half-naked blacks from the Sus and the Drax; lean, enduring Arabs in their spotless white djellabas rubbed shoulders with Berbers from the highlands in black camel-hair cloaks; there were Levantine Turks, and Jewish refugees from Spain ostentatiously dressed in European garments, tolerated there because bound to the Moor by ties of common suffering and common exile from that land that once had been their own.

SECRETARY WALLACE'S CONDITION IS GRAVE Posse Searches Swamp For Bride And Groom

YOUTH SHOTS TWO AND THEN ESCAPES WITH GIRL CAPTIVE

Forces Bride to go With Him After Father and Brother Are Shot
SEARCH FAILS TO LOCATE THE PAIR
Physicians Believe That Both of Wounded Will Recover

(Associated Press)
NORFOLK, Va., Oct. 24.—An all-night search by a posse of Buck Trout and his bride, whom he forced to accompany him after he had shot her father and brother, J. P. Mayhan and Hugh Mayhan, respectively.
The father is suffering of gun shot wounds in the leg and the brother received a load of shot in the right arm and side, some of it penetrating the abdomen. Hospital physicians thought today both would recover.
James and Ruth Mayhan were married at Elizabeth City, N. C., ten days ago, despite the opposition of the girl's father. A few days ago, Mr. Mayhan said today, the girl left her husband and returned to his home without any suggestion on his part. Hugh Mayhan said James opened the door of the Mayhan home last evening and fired into the room, where he and his sister were sitting.
He then grabbed the girl while dragging her from the house, encountered the father. The older Mayhan said James fired at him and exclaimed: "I'll kill the whole family now."
He then forced the girl to accompany him into the swamp and the search for them is being continued today.

A fairly large audience at the Masonic theater last night was pleased to "Meet the Wife" and obtained smiles, laughs and vociferous "gudfaws" from the unusual play.
Mr. Brownell, handling the difficult role of the wife, completely won her and received several curtain calls. The entire cast was good and the audience a delightful two hour treat.

TEMPERANCE ACT WINS IN CANADA

Rural Dry Sections To Turn Tide In Favor Of Prohibition

(Associated Press)
TORONTO, Canada, Oct. 24.—Revised figures in the Ontario liquor question up to 9:30 o'clock this morning gave a majority of 30,167 for the Temperance act. The figures in the dry columns continued to mount as the returns from the rural district were received.
The alternative proposal which called for the sale of liquor under government control piled up a lead of 70,000 soon after the polls closed and the city districts were all in. The strongly dry rural sections however turned the tide at midnight.
The plebiscite was the first in Ontario since 1919 when a similar referendum showed a majority of 407,000 in favor of the dry law. The act was passed in 1916 as a war measure and is similar to the 18th amendment in the United States constitution in that it allows the sale of liquor only upon the authority of physicians for medical purposes.
Women's organizations campaigned actively for the retention of the act while the "wets" concentrated their efforts on the cities which they felt would roll up a safe majority to carry the alternative.

Woman Candidate Has Relative Here

The candidacy of Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross for the governorship of Wyoming has attracted much interest here not only because Mrs. Ross is one of America's first gubernatorial candidates, but because of her relation by marriage to W. R. Smith, popular business man of Albany.
Mr. Smith is an uncle of Mrs. Alfred Taylor who in turn is a sister-in-law of the Wyoming candidate for governor. Mrs. Taylor is a daughter of the late Ed F. (Pop) Geers, the noted turfman.
A Cheyenne, Wyo., dispatch stated that Mrs. Ross was named by unanimous vote to be the democratic nominee for Governor of Wyoming, following the recent death of her husband, Governor William B. Ross. She is of Virginia and Tennessee parentage and was born in Mississippi, the dispatch stated.

LOCAL MOUND NOT TO BE 'EXPLORED' BY DR. FOWKE NOW

Smithsonian Explorer Finds Mound Here Is a "Flat Top"
RELICS FOUND ARE INTERESTING
Work Completed In the Town Creek Area In Lawrence County

The mound on the Somerville road, near the crossing of the Bee Line highway, will not be explored at this time by Dr. Gerard Fowke, of the Smithsonian Institute. Dr. Fowke having been convinced by a preliminary examination this morning that the mound would not yield relics of sufficient interest to warrant undertaking the excavation.
Dr. Fowke has just completed the exploration of several Indian mounds in Lawrence County, near Town Creek and hopes to obtain permission from owners of the property to explore several mounds in other sections of Lawrence, near Moulton.
The mound here is a "flat top", Dr. Fowke explained, mounds of that variety rarely yielding relics. Conical mounds usually yield the greatest volume of relics he said.
During the excavations near Town Creek, Dr. Fowke said, 20 skeletons were found in one mound, together with interesting copper plates, copper beads and other interesting relics, including several farm implements.
Mostly Children.
Dr. Fowke, discussing the excavation of mounds, declared that fully 75 per cent of the Indian skeletons he had found were of children. "The mortality rate among children of the Indian tribes must have been very heavy he added.
Among the skeletons found near Town Creek was one which had a flat head. Apparently the abnormal growth of the skull had been started when the Indian was a baby. One skeleton revealed a broken leg, which had healed nicely even in those days before modern surgery was known. A shin bone revealed a bowed leg, the curvature being in the direction of the toe of the foot, instead of toward the side of the foot as is usual now.
Another mound yielded several skeletons of both adults and children.
Dr. Fowke declared he found much of interest to him in the Town Creek mound area.

Business Outlook Is Good Says Gary

(Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Oct. 24.—Business conditions during the next four years predicted largely upon the result of the coming election, E. H. Gary, chairman of the United States Steel Corporation, declared in his presidential address to the American Iron and Steel Institute today.
"Every well informed business man or woman," he said, "knows that if the best men are elected there probably will be continued and increasing prosperity and if others less capable and less worthy are selected, we may expect depression and disturbances in business, less production, more idleness, less comfort, more distress; a decided interruption to legitimate progress that will not be easily nor soon overcome."
Mr. Gary said he was convinced the public had been right during the last few months in believing the election returns would be satisfactory as shown by the steady and persistent increase in the volume of business.
With such a result, he added, the country could look forward through the autumn and succeeding months with hope and confidence.
"Our ship of state is too great, too fine, too solid, substantial and strong," he declared, "to be pronounced un-seaworthy on the words of unscrupulous, unintelligent, or inexperienced men, and then turned over to a board of underwriters."
Outlining qualifications which he believed a president of the United States should possess, Mr. Gary said: "He should be willing to lend his influence and devote his talents to legitimate business progress and general prosperity and likewise to prevent and penalize corruption and wrong. He should endeavor to assist and to protect the poor, the weak and the suffering, and at the same time should be willing to help the rich, the strong and the happy when it is undisputedly right to do so."

President Calls On The Sick Man
No Visitors Allowed To See Chief of Dept. of Agriculture

(Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Secretary Wallace of the agriculture department has suffered further complications from the operation he underwent last week for the removal of his appendix and gall bladder and his condition is reported as serious.
Toxemia, resulting from an infection of the intestines, has set in, and Dr. John Finney of Johns Hopkins University was called today for consultation.
While concern is felt by physicians over the condition of Mr. Wallace, Dr. J. T. Boone, white house physician, one of those attending him, said hope is held for his recovery.
President Coolidge made a trip today to the naval hospital but because of the turn for the worse, in the condition of the secretary, he did not enter the sick room.
Mr. Wallace was operated on last week and for several days he proceeded toward recovery. A complication set in yesterday, however, and this was followed early today by a still more serious development.
No visitors are allowed to see him.

KIWANIS DISCUSS PROBLEMS OF FARM

Home Demonstration Agent for Morgan Is Approved

The regular weekly meeting of the Morgan Kiwanis club held at the Y. M. C. A. on Thursday evening was given over to discussion of farm problems following a dinner served by the ladies of the Westminster Presbyterian church. The club had as its guests Miss Agnes Ellen Harris of the state home demonstration department with headquarters at Auburn and Miss Evelyn Peyton of the Madison county home demonstration offices. After a very enlightening talk by Miss Harris and a similar discourse by Miss Peyton the club went on record as favoring the establishment of a similar organization in Morgan County. A resolution was adopted by the club to the effect that some 25 members will go before the Morgan County Board of Revenue in the early part of November with the proposal that the organization be perfected and supported. This is with the plan in view of establishing a Morgan County agent on January 1, 1925.

Miss Peyton in her talk to the membership stated that six years ago the Madison County club was formed with a membership of 76. Today she added the same organization has a membership in that county of over 1000 members and would not do away with the organization under any circumstances, so valuable had been the results in both the towns and rural communities.

W. D. Barton of the farm bureau association with headquarters at Montgomery and J. C. Ford county agent of Morgan County with headquarters at Hartselle said a few words on the value of the organization from a point of co-operation with the farm bureau workers.

A response by the club members was roundly applauded and T. M. Dix offered the resolution that was adopted by the membership present.

Other guests of the club from nearby farming lands and the remote sections of the county were: Colonel and Mrs. W. B. Edmondson, Dr. T. J. Russell, J. T. Robinson, W. L. Ballew, George Woodruff, W. L. Hardwick, W. M. Parker, J. F. Cain, all eager to offer their co-operation to the townspeople on matters that are vital to both townsmen and agriculturists. The enthusiastic gathering was in favor of a ladies night during the earlier part of November.

The stunt and entertainment committees functioned properly and enthusiastically before the business of the meeting was opened and were very earnest in the work during the discussion of the depletion of charity funds under the head of urgent business.

Children With Rickets Need Cod Liver Oil

For weak, puny, under-developed children—and especially those that have rickets, and need a sure builder that promotes the growth of teeth and bones, cod liver oil is the one medicine supreme—nothing helps like it. But it is nasty and repulsive and evil smelling and nearly always upsets children's stomachs—so now up-to-date chemists advise McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets.

Children love them as they do candy, because they are sugar coated and easy to take. One boy gained 11 1-2 pounds in seven weeks, and is now healthy and happy—thousands of other children have grown strong and robust.

Sixty tablets for 60 cents at Albany Drug Co., and druggists all over North America—but be sure and ask for McCoy's—the original and genuine.—Advt.

will probably be: Speer, RE; Watson RT; Cobb RG; Kirby C; Byers LG; Bowen LT; Shelton LE; McAbee QB; McRee LH; Gustin RH; Ellison FB; with Plunkett, Donohue, Walker, Yarbrough and Dunaway in reserve.

The remainder of the schedule for the season is practically filled with Falkville High tentative on the 1st of November, Florence Normal November 8, Morgan Preparatory school of Petersburg on the 14th, Blountsville or Cullman on both the 22nd and Thanksgiving day.

The fighting Decatur High school team made an appearance at the Cooper-Wells field on Thursday afternoon after being unable to get out to practice on account of an epidemic of injuries and minor maladies. The lighter eleven put up plenty of stiff opposition although they were forced to give way before the heavier line of the Shopmen and the consistent line pounding of the Independent back field. Neither the Decatur High nor the Albany High teams have games scheduled for the end of the week and it leaves the Independents as the only local eleven to provide amusement in the pigskin line. They will furnish the thrills against the Moulton team that will meet them on the Cooper-Wells field at 4 o'clock Saturday.

The Morgan Prep school scheduled to play the Independents here on Friday, November 14 is reputed to be one of the best in Tennessee Prep circles and it is a well known fact that they are out for the state championship as a goal. Morgan has made several trips to the cities of this locality and has always carried away a rather impressive victory. Floyd Tuck former Albany high star said on a recent trip home here that "when Vanderbilt had the Howard game cancelled, we tried to get it," that's how strong our team is." Tuck is milling around in a backfield berth with the Prep folks and was spoken of as one of the best offensive and defensive backs in the state last year. It is probable that the Morgan team will go to Birmingham following the game with the Independents to witness the Alabama-Centre game that is to be played on the following Saturday.

The Republicans have plenty of money, of little else.

Normalcy reigns in Herrin. The troops are back on the job.

Half of a good thing is better than none at all, but all of it is better than half. Why not route the tourists directly through Albany-Decatur?

The same fellow who couldn't understand what the youngsters would stay out until 2 o'clock for, now will talk for an hour on how good the radio was at half past this morning.

Twenty-seven guests registered at a local hotel the other evening within a couple of hours. Two of them were tourists, the rest were salesmen and others driving through in cars. Undoubtedly more than two tourists passed through here that day. The meat of the proposition was that the salesmen and the others familiar with Albany-Decatur and their location stopped here for the night. The drivers of tourist cars, unfamiliar with our location, passed on through the eastern section of the cities and did not stop.

COUNTY FARM AGENT FORD IS DOING REAL WORK IN MORGAN

It is natural that people dwelling in the more thickly settled portions of Morgan county should not be as familiar with the constructive work being done for the farmers of the county by County Agent J. C. Ford, as are the farmers themselves, but the effects of his endeavors will be felt in the towns, as well as the farms, in years to come.

Mr. Ford deserves the appreciation of the entire county for the efforts he has put forth to aid the farmers in solving the many problems of agriculture.

Recently The Daily carried a news article detailing one of his latest campaigns, a terracing school. Mr. Ford has been able to arrange several sessions of the school, to be held at various points in the county, for planters who constantly are face to face with some problem in terracing. Out of these schools good is sure to come, just as benefits have been derived from the many other educational campaigns he has carried on let us all give to him our wholehearted support in his work for certainly he is deserving of nothing less.

GIVE THE SCHOOL AMENDMENT A BIG MAJORITY IN MORGAN

Morgan county owes it to the three Lawrence county communities effected to roll up a big majority for the constitutional amendment permitting them to levy additional taxes against themselves for their schools. No doubt it is a safe law which puts constitutional limitations upon tax levies, but at times it does seem to work a hardship on a community which desires to increase its tax levy for good purposes, to have to ask permission of the rest of the state.

There are a great many people who vote against changes in the constitution, because they are unfamiliar with the necessity of the change. There is not time left to thoroughly acquaint the people of the state with the problem which exists in Lawrence, know full well that if the people of Moulton, Landersville and Town Creek desire to tax themselves for the upbuilding of their schools, they should have that privilege.

Because we are familiar with the problem and as an act of neighborly kindness, we should give that amendment a tremendous majority in Morgan county. It is the least we can do.

THE IMPORTANCE OF THE BALLOT BOX AGAIN CALLED ATTENTION TO

The importance of the ballot, and the duty of all qualified to vote cannot be overestimated. The will of the people concerning their government is expressed alone at the ballot box. At least all should be as careful to vote on election days, as at a meeting of a board of directors of a business. More and more government is becoming a matter of business. Business policies and business measures are constantly coming before our legislators for consideration. The enforcement of laws is always a part of government. The making of laws to regulate the personal conduct of people is still a task of lawmakers. But more and more, whether we wish it or not the government is getting into business. It appears just at the present, that the government may go into the business of operating Muscle Shoals—and if it should make a success of that project there is no telling how far the idea of "government in business" may lead. The possibility of the entry of government in business is mentioned just in passing—to show voters how vitally important it is to them to inform themselves as to how to vote and then vote when election day comes. In his Louisville, Ky., speech, John W. Davis had the following to say on the duty of electors exercising their civic rights:

"It is in the ballots of this country and the ballots alone, that its destiny rests and if we are false by abstention, by carelessness or by worse, we can not criticize the shortcomings of those who take public office, we can not complain in the years to come if disaster comes to visit us."

WORDS OF WISDOM FROM MR. DAVIS IN NASHVILLE SPEECH

John W. Davis has delivered two notable speeches at Nashville, one was to an audience of 14,000 people at the Vanderbilt stadium, the other was at a banquet given by the Nashville Chamber of Commerce.

In concluding the chamber of commerce address Mr. Davis called attention to the claim of General Dawes, to the effect that if the republican party was not returned to power the "red" menace would appear throughout the country, and took issue with the republican vice presidential nominee. Mr. Davis warned, that there was danger ahead for any nation that became too conservative, too unresponsive to the claims of the people generally.

The last few paragraphs of Mr. Davis' speech at the banquet is as follows:

"General Dawes would have us believe that around every corner there lurks a 'Red', with a bomb in one hand and a dagger in the other, and tect you, you may be exploded any unfortunate unless he and his colleagues are permitted to prove even of your life.

"There is radicalism in the United States. There is unrest in the United States. There are men who are proposing for the United States policies that are not only novel but dangerous, and many of which are a mere return to experiments long since tried and rejected by common experience, either of ourselves or our ancestors. And there are other men in this country who are so fearful or change so inherently conservative in their character, so content, if you please, with the position they have found for themselves in the world that they want no change made and shudder at the thought of a revolution. And if there be a day when radicalism shall rise in this country, if some day it shall sweep us like a torrent to ports and destinies we know not of, while we flow on its current as helpless as the ships upon the stream—if that day ever comes, it will be because the dykes of conservatism have been so stoutly built that they gave to the rising of the waters no outlet whatever, but held against them until the flood was immediate and destructive.

"If you are afraid of radicalism in this country; if you want to prevent radicalism in this country, you will not do it by throwing yourselves into the arms of reaction. There is no relief there.

"It was the great Italian statesman Thabour one of the wisest men of the last half century who said, 'Do you want to prevent revolution? Do you want to do away with radicalism? I will tell you how to do it. It is by affording remedy in quiet times instead of waiting for times when you have no longer power to guide the remedy.' And that is sound wisdom and sound statesmanship, and what I firmly believe this country needs to day, not only for its present happiness and prosperity, but for its future greatness and welfare is a sane, sound progressive liberalism that expects the best and not the worst in human nature to prevail, that believes the future can be made brighter than the past, that does not treat every complaint as necessarily unfounded, but is willing to investigate and apply a remedy if remedy there may be.

"In short, I think we want in this country a government thorough and by a party that is willing in the language of the great apostle to try all things, but hold fast to that which is good."

JOHN W. DAVIS' CHANCE

In these days of selfish propaganda and misleading information set going by Republican campaigners, it is refreshing to read the estimates of the situation made by impartial and observant men who have no purpose to mislead and who are only interested for the good and welfare of their country.

In a personal letter to a friend in Chattanooga one of the most prominent and widely-informed men of Washington city, a man who has been in touch with politics at the national capital for 40 years and who has himself participated in various campaigns, gives his opinion in a brief paragraph, incidental to the subject matter about which he was writing, as follows: "I sincerely believe from evidences coming to me from various quarters and from the tone of sentiment among thinking men here, that Davis has a chance to win. God grant that he may."

Confirming this opinion we are told that there is a quiet, but effective movement among such business and professional men as are not influenced by the hope of special rewards from the Republican party, in behalf of Mr. Davis. They are not noisy or offensive in their campaigning nor are they claiming everything in sight regardless of common sense and sound judgment, but like this Washington writer, they have seen enough to make them "sincerely believe that Mr. Davis has a chance."

It is agreed on all hands that Mr. Davis is the best equipped man for the presidency now before the people. He is fitted for it by reason of his knowledge of government and its obligations to the people; by his wide experience in the public service and by his sound beliefs in the fundamental principles of Democracy and his sympathy with all the agencies—business, industry, agriculture, education, etc.—organized for the happiness of the people and the prosperity of the country. Everybody knows that the business of the nation would be in safe hands if John W. Davis should be chosen President and that under his administration all the people of whatever class or standing would be guaranteed equal and fair opportunities for getting on and that men and business would be put upon their own resources without special favors from government and be held responsible for their own acts. That is the only kind of administration that will save the country and prevent the decay of its institutions. —Chattanooga Times.

FLAPPERS GROWING KEEN

LONDON—English women aroused by a desire to enlarge the long restricted horizon of their activities are rushing pell-mell to Scotland Yard these days in an endeavor to enlist in the Metropolitan Police Force at the very fountain head of police administration in England.

Their endeavors are a little premature. Nevertheless they are greatly encouraged by a committee report recommending increase in the number of women "bobbies," at present very small. But parliament must enact the necessary legislation to provide for the salaries of the police women before actual recruiting can commence.

All this to the contrary ambitious women, not content with merely writing to Scotland Yard, beseege the entrance of the big round-towered building off Whitehall in an attempt to press in person their claims to preferment as members of the police force. All sorts of women are among the beseegers, old, young, middle-aged. Girls with bobbed hair and other gay young friskers are strangely mixed up with grave old plodders, all anxious to serve as guardians of John Bull's peace.

Japanese Inspired to Explore

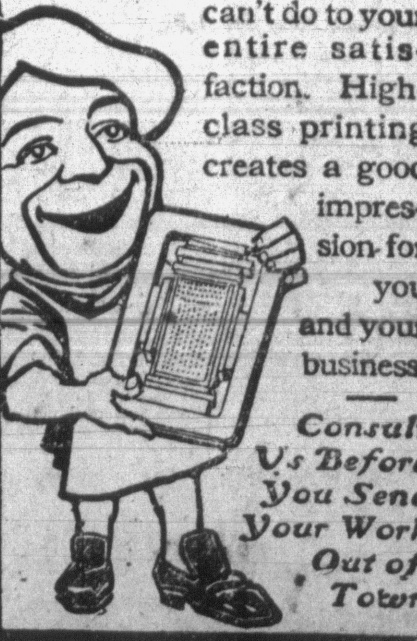

..... Mongolia's Unknown Lands

TOKIO—Tsunemichi Kiyoura, former Premier, will lead a party of Japanese explorers and scientist into Mongolia next spring, according to plans recently announced. The purpose of the enterprise is to increase Japanese knowledge of Mongolia and to link that large and undeveloped territory more closely culturally and economically with Japan.

The scientific researches in Mongolia by the Third Asiatic Expedition of the American Museum of Natural History, under Roy Chapman Andrews, has been an incentive to Japanese exploration in that region.

THOUGHTS.

O fruit loved of boyhood!—
The old days recalling,
When woods and fields were purple
And brown nuts were falling!
When wild, ugly faces we carried
In its skin,
Glaring out through the lark with a candle within!
When we laughed round the corn-
heap, with hearts all in tune,
Our chair a broad pumpkin,—our lantern the moon.
Telling tales of the fairy who travelled like steam,
In a pumpkin-shell coach, with two rats for her team!

Dix and little Miss Jane Todd charmed her hearers with a vocal solo.

Mr. J. D. Garren, in a fitting speech, on behalf of the choir, expressed appreciation of the splendid work done by Mrs. Kabrich for the choir and their regret at her departure and presented her with a lovely piece of silver, as a token of this appreciation.

Mrs. Todd served ice cream and cake late in the evening to her guests including Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Burk, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Giles, Mrs. J. B. Dickinson, Mrs. T. M. Dix, Mrs. Kabrich, Paul Dix, J. D. Garren, Henry Davis and Gilbert Crane.

Profiteers In Grain 23 Centuries Ago Invoked Restraint

YALOVACH—The ruins of a massive triumphal arch believed to have been constructed in the early part of the first century A. D., Latin inscriptions of that century and a head of Augustus in white marble are among archaeological finds which have been unearthed by the university of Michigan expedition which is excavating under the direction of Prof. David M. Robinson of Johns Hopkins University on the site of Antioch in Pisidia in Asia Minor. It was this expedition which recently uncovered the foundation of a large early Christian church.

The arch, which was recently discovered, spanned a road near the base of the large oval hill on which the city stood. The road probably connected with the highway to Lystra.

The arch had a single passage-way with a span of about fourteen feet. The piers contained arched recesses as if for statues. They were embellished with superimposed pilasters exemplifying two varieties of the Corinthian order. These carried the main entablature, of which the architecture bore an inscription in bronze letters six inches high. Only one of the letters has been found, buried in the earth where it fell, but from the holes in which the letters were fastened it will be possible to decipher the inscription.

Important among other recent finds is the head of Augustus, which in respect to technical skill and expressiveness is reported to rival the best of the remarkable series of sculptured portraits of this emperor in European galleries.

Another interesting discovery is a long Latin inscription in which are recorded the efforts of Antistius Rusticus a Roman governor in office near the end of the first century to control the price of grain in time of famine so as to prevent profiteering and also to provide sufficient food until the next crop. This Antistius died in Asia Minor and his ashes were carried by his wife Nigrina in a small urn in her hands all the way to Italy. Her devotion is recorded in a famous epigram by the Roman poet Martial, who was a contemporary.

The ruins of Antioch in Pisidia are near Yalovach northwest of Eonia, which was the ancient Iconium. Both Antioch and Iconium had much reputation in the early church because of their association with the missionary work of Paul and Barnabas.

The wages paid to the workmen employed in the digging have been a godsend to the natives, many of whom were at the point of starvation owing to failure of crops in the region last season similar to that recorded in the inscription of Antistius Rusticus.

Scientists Plan to Study Origin of Polynesian Races

HONOLULU—The party of scientists which plans to leave Hawaii in October aboard the yacht Kaimiloa for the south seas will receive an official welcome and all possible aid from the Cood Islands administration of the New Zealand government, according to word received by officials of the Bishop museum which is sponsoring the cruise.

The cruise of the Kaimiloa through Polynesia will last three years, according to present plans. The scientists will study marine fauna, native plants, insects, ethnology, archaeological remains of former inhabitants, ocean currents, meteorology and other elements. The party will concentrate upon the eight main islands of the Cook group—Rarotonga, Mangaia, Atiu, Mauiki, Mitiaro, Aitutaki, Takutea and Manuai, but visits also will be made to Niue, Palmerston, Tongareva, Manihiki, Rakahanga, Eukapake and Savaro which are part of New Zealand's territory.

Notice is hereby given that Luther Rea will make application to the board of pardons or governor for a pardon or parole. Convicted in the fall term of court in 1922 in Morgan County for the offense of manufacturing whiskey and sentenced to serve from 2 to 3 years in the state penitentiary.

Don't let constipation make you an invalid —relieve it with Kellogg's Bran

Few people realize how dangerous is constipation until this dread disease tears down their health. Did you know that more than forty serious diseases can be traced to constipation?

Keep your health, or restore it, with Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. It brings relief in mild and chronic cases of constipation. It is effective because it is ALL bran. That is why it is recommended so highly by doctors. They know that only ALL bran can bring 100 per cent results. Part bran is, at best, only a halfway measure.

If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran will bring permanent relief—even in the most chronic case. It is guaranteed to do so. If it fails, your grocer will return your money.

Because it is ALL bran it sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. Like nature, it acts naturally. It makes the intestine function regularly.

Eat it every day—two tablespoons—in chronic cases, with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Enjoy it in those wonderful recipes given on every package.

The flavor of Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is delicious. It is crisp, nut-like. Quite different from ordinary bran, which are so unpalatable. Kellogg's Bran is made in Battle Creek and served by the leading hotels and clubs everywhere. Sold by all grocers.

GREAT CROWDS HEAR CHIEF WHITE EAGLE

Great crowds gather at the Albany Drug Co., each night to hear Chief White Eagle who has arrived here from far west Oklahoma and to hear him lecture and tell about his tribe of Indians, the Cherokees. The chief is advertising his Indian Sennatone. This has been placed with the Albany Drug Co., and always will be sold there. He says Indians outlive every other nation. If we get sick we take God's medicine, which is made out of herbs and was placed in this earth for his people to use. You never saw an Indian with constipation or rheumatism. The Albany Drug Co. is selling more of the chief's medicine than any other.

Dr. White Eagle is one of the chiefs of the Cherokee Indian tribe and was born and raised on a ranch in Oklahoma, and was graduated from the Lawrence, Indian college at Chickasha, Oklahoma.

His family consists of a squaw, the Indian Princess, who is with him and a daughter who lives in Idaho. He is fond of and loves horses, dogs, flowers and music, but says that he loves his poor old squaw better than anything else in this world.

Although very far away from their native territory, they feel very much at home in the south. "We like Albany and Decatur people," the chief says, "and they are good, kind people, have been good to us, and we are doing a fine business here and are making many friends."

Some of our very best citizens are testifying to the great virtue of White Eagle's medicine. He has placed with Albany Drug Co., all his remedies and if you are troubled with rheumatism, stomach trouble, constipation, don't fail to get a bottle of the Indian sennatone $1 bottle and be cured. If you are not benefitted, your money will be returned. Don't complain any longer but be healed with God's own medicine. Advt.

A GOOD LAXATIVE

Black-Draught Recommended by an Illinois Lady, Who Says It Helps Her.—"Fine for the Liver."

St. Elmo, Ill.—"I have used Black-Draught for three years," says Mrs. J. W. Boyd, a well-known member of this community. "I was visiting a friend who had used it for some time. I was in need of a laxative and I had a burning in my stomach. I was constipated. She gave me a dose of Black-Draught and it helped me, so I used it from then on. It certainly benefited me. I think it is fine for the liver, too. I am glad to recommend it. "One day our pastor was visiting us, and he said his system seemed clogged and asked me to give him something to take. I gave him Black-Draught. He was much pleased with the results and bought a package, himself."

Constipation forces the system to absorb poisons that should be thrown out, causing pain, discomfort and tending to undermine your health. Black-Draught helps to relieve this condition by acting on the bowels, and by regulating the liver when it is torpid, thus helping to drive out many poisons in an easy, natural way.

Don't take chances! At the first indication of constipation, take Black-Draught. Costs only a cent a dose. Your local druggist, or dealer, sells Black-Draught. NC-153

ECZEMA

You will be compelled to admit that the results of S.S.S. are really amazing!

MANY people imagine that eczema or better needs only some external application on the skin in order to get relief. This is because the attention of the sufferer is so violently directed to the intense burning and itching which accompanies this disease. Try as they may—permanent relief will never be theirs until the disease laden blood is thoroughly cleansed.

We know there is one thing that stops eczema and that is more red-blood-cells! S.S.S. builds them by the million! You can increase your red-blood-cells to the point where it is practically impossible for eczema to exist. We know that as blood-cells increase in number, blood impurities vanish! We also know that night follows day. Both are facts! But have you, eczema sufferers, ever actually taken advantage of this wonderful fact? Thousands just like you have never thought about it. Skin eruptions, eczema, with all its fiery, skin digging torture, and its soul-tearing, unrelenting itching, pimples, blackheads and boils, they all pack up and go, when the tide of blood-cells begins to roll in! Red-blood-cells are the fighting giants of Nature! S.S.S. builds them by the million! It has been doing it since 1826.

S.S.S. is one of the greatest blood-cell builders, blood-cleansers and body strengtheners known to us mortals! When you put these facts together—then to continue to have eczema and skin eruptions looks more like a sin than a disease. S.S.S. contains only vegetable medicinal ingredients. Because S.S.S. does build red-blood-cells, it cures eczema, clears the skin, builds firm flesh, fills out hollow cheeks, and gives you that more up and going appearance.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Under the glaring African sun this amazing crowd stood assembled to welcome Sakr-el-Bahr; and welcome him it did with such vocal thunder that an echo of it from the mole reached the very Kasbah on the hill-top to herald his approach.

By the time, however, that he reached the fortress his procession had dwindled by more than half. At the side his forces had divided, and his corsairs, headed by Othman, had marched the captives away to the bagnio whilst the camels had continued up the hill. Under the great gateway of the Kasbah they padded into the vast courtyard to be ranged along two sides of it by their Saharawi drivers, and there brought clumsily to their knees. After them followed but some two score corsairs as a guard of honor to their leader. They took their stand upon either side of the gateway after profoundly salaaming to Asad-ed-Din. The Basha sat in the shade of an awning enthroned upon a divan, attended by his wazir Tsamanni and by Marzak, and guarded by a half-dozen janissaries, whose sable garments made an effective background to the green and gold of his jeweled robes. In his white turban glowed an emerald crescent.

The Basha's countenance was dark and brooding as he watched and his life to the service of Islam, who had been accepted by Sakr-el-Bahr, and stood now before Asad to be confirmed in his office.

Marzak interposed petulantly, to exclaim that already were there too many erstwhile Nasrani dogs in the ranks of the soldiers of the Faith, and that it was unwise to increase their number and presumptuous in Sakr-el-Bahr to take so much upon himself.

Sakr-el-Bahr measured him with an eye in which scorn and surprise were nicely blended.

"Dost say that it is presumptuous to win a convert to the banner of Our Lord Mahomet?" quoth he. "Go read the Most Perspicuous Book and see what is there enjoined as a duty upon every True Believer. And bethink thee, O son of Asad, that when thou dost in thy little wisdom cast scorn upon those whom Allah has blessed and led from the night wherein they dwelt into the bright noontide of Faith, thou dost cast scorn upon me and upon mine own mother, which is but a little matter, and thou dost blaspheme the Blessed name of Allah, which is to tread the ways that lead unto the Pit."

Angry but defeated and silenced, Marzak fell back a step and stood biling his lip and glowering upon the corsair, what time Asad nodded his head and smiled approval.

"Verily art thou full learned in the True Belief, Sakr-el-Bahr," he said. "Thou art the very father of wisdom as of valor."

"The crowd stood assembled to welcome Sakr-el-Bahr."

the advent of that line of burdened camels. His thoughts were still laboring with the doubt of Sakr-el-Bahr which Fenzileh's crafty speech and craftier reticence had planted in them. But at sight of the corsair leader himself his countenance cleared suddenly, his eyes sparkled, and he rose to his feet to welcome him as a father might welcome a son who had been through perils in a service dear to both.

Sakr-el-Bahr entered the courtyard on foot, having dismounted at the gate. Tall and imposing, with his head high and his forked beard thrusting forward, he stalked with great dignity to the foot of the divan, followed by Ali and a mahogany-faced fellow, turbaned and red-bearded, in whom it needed more than a glance to recognize the rascally Jasper Leigh, now in all the panoply of your complete renegade.

Sakr-el-Bahr went down upon his knees and prostrated himself solemnly before his prince.

"The blessing of Allah and His peace upon thee, my lord," was his greeting.

And Asad, stooping to lift that splendid figure in his arms, gave him a welcome that caused the spying Fenzileh to clench her teeth behind the fretted lattice that concealed her.

"The praise to Allah and to our Lord Mahomet that thou art returned and in health, my son. Already hath my old heart been gladdened by the news of thy victories in the service of the Faith."

Then followed the display of all those riches wrested from the Dutch, and greatly though Asad's expectations had been fed already by Othman, the sight now spread before his eyes by far exceeded all those expectations.

In the end all was dismissed to the treasury, and Tsamanni was bidden to go cast up the account of it and mark the share that fell to the portion of those concerned—for in these ventures all were partners, from the Basha himself, who represented the State, down to the meanest corsair who had manned the victorious vessels of the Faith, and each had his share of the booty, greater or less according to his rank, one-twentieth of the total falling to Sakr-el-Bahr himself.

In the courtyard were left none but Asad, Marzak, and the janissaries, and Sakr-el-Bahr with Ali and Jasper. It was then that Sakr-el-Bahr presented his new officer to the Basha, as one upon whom the grace of Allah had descended, a great fighter and a skilled seaman, who had offered up his talents

And thereupon he gave welcome to Master Leigh, whom he hailed to the ranks of the Faithful under the designation of Jasper-Reis.

That done, the renegade and Ali were both dismissed, as were also the janissaries, who, quitting their position behind Asad, went to take their stand on guard at the gateway. Then the Basha beat his hands together, and to the slaves who came in answer to his summons he gave orders to set food, and he bade Sakr-el-Bahr to come sit beside him on the divan.

Water was brought, that they might wash. That done, the slaves placed before them a savory stew of meat and eggs with olives, limes and spices.

Asad broke bread with a reverently pronounced, "Bismillah!" and dipped his fingers into the earthenware bowl, leading the way for Sakr-el-Bahr and Marzak, and as they ate he invited the corsair himself to recite the tale of his adventure.

When he had done so, and again Asad had praised him in high and loving terms, Marzak set him a question.

"Was it to obtain just these two English slaves that thou didst undertake this perilous voyage to that distant land?"

"That was but a part of my design," was the calm reply. "I went to rove the seas in the Prophet's service, as the result of my voyage gives proof."

"Thou didst not know that this Dutch argosy would cross thy path," said Marzak, in the very words his mother had prompted him.

"Did I not?" quoth Sakr-el-Bahr, and he smiled confidently, so confidently that Asad scarce needed to hear the words that so cunningly gave the lie to the innuendo.

"Had I not trust in Allah, the All-wise, the All-knowing?"

"Well answered, by the Koran!" Asad approved him heartily, the more heartily since it rebutted insinuations which he desired above all to hear rebutted.

But Marzak did not yet own himself defeated. He had been soundly schooled by his griefful Sicilian mother, and he was something in all this I do not understand," he murmured, with false gentleness.

"All things are possible to Allah," said Sakr-el-Bahr in tones of incredulity, as if he suggested—not without a suspicion of irony—that it was incredible there should be anything in all the world that could elude the penetration of Marzak.
